BACKGROUND: Jason grew up in Nephi, Utah on his family's farm. On the farm there were beef cattle, sheep, alfalfa hay, and small grains.

EDUCATION: Jason initially attended Snow College where he enjoyed taking every available class in agriculture. He later transferred to Utah State University where he completed his Agricultural Education degree.

AGRICULTURAL TEACHER: Jason not only teaches agriculture courses at Sevier High School he is also the FFA advisor of the North Sevier FFA Chapter. Jason serves on the Sevier County Farm Bureau Board, which allows him to coordinate Farm Bureau and FFA efforts in promoting agriculture. He also serves on the Southern Utah Junior Livestock Show Board. Jason enjoys taking his students on business visits to show them what future employment opportunities they have in the community.

STUDENT SUCCESS: Jason enjoys seeing his students succeed. He gives his students hands-on learning experiences such as operating farm equipment with the various activities of crop production, animal husbandry activities with livestock including selecting sires, managing a Forest Service grazing permit, and performing a necropsy on calves lost during birthing to determine cause of loss. Through these experiences students become successful agricultural students and leaders.

CLASSROOM: Jason's classroom is outdoors where students raise cattle and grow crops. Part of the hands-on learning experience is their participation in a small cattle operation. Jason guides his students as they develop skills on how to successfully take care of the cattle and grow and harvest a hay crop to feed them. He also teaches students how to utilize technology by using a drone to make management decisions on the cattle operation and hay farm.

"Jason is an awesome teacher who has a pure love for his students."

OCTOBER 2023 CTE TEACHER OF THE MONTH

Jason encourages his students to participate in personal and leadership development activities inside the classroom and outside the classroom. Students are encouraged to participate in all the FFA leadership development competitive events including agricultural communications, agricultural issues forum, creed speaking, public speaking, extemporaneous speaking, parliamentary procedure, agricultural sales, the Farm Bureau Discussion Meet, and many others.

Mr. Goble always allowed us, his students, many opportunities to learn hands-on and learn life skills. Some of the tasks would include dissection to figure out the cause of death, seed germination, raising poultry for operation, projects in agricultural mechanics to assure knowledge in engines, plumbing, and welding. I can confidently say, many of these skills I learned in Mr. Goble's classes I have used. These skills are taught to all students in his classes, but I was also fortunate to have many more experiences as an involved FFA member and officer.

“

“Mr. Goble was the one who showed me what true leadership was when he took me into his classes in high school. I felt at home. When we were away at contests he was the one I would go to with questions. Mr. Goble was the teacher who always knew what I was capable of and always pushed me to go beyond the limits that I had set for myself. He was the advisor who made me realize that I was limitless.”

“

“I have known about the talent of Mr. Goble since I was a student at USU. He was noted as an admirable teacher who ran a program that stood as a foundation of agricultural education. His work ethic is rarely matched and his influence is boundless. We are truly lucky to have him as a leader in our industry.”
