

Homesick

Julie had never been away from home before, and her	10 first night in the country was a frightening one. Of course, she	22 knew Aunt Jean and Uncle Harry well, for they had often	33 come to the city to visit her parents. But this was the first time	47
she had been at their farm. She didn't know whether she was	59 going to like making friends with horses, and cattle, and	69
chickens.	70
Julie wished Aunt Jean had never written the letter	79 asking if she could come for a visit. She wished she could go	92 home. She wished...	95
Julie rubbed her eyes. She didn't want to cry. After all,	106
she was in the third grade. But she did feel lonely and strange	119
as she stood in the middle of the room before she got ready for	133
bed.	134
