Dear Wendi:

Thank you for your efforts to coordinate credit review between the State Board of Education CTE office and LDS Business College. The College is pleased to announce its intent to offer college credit to those students who complete the following CTE courses with an 80% or above score on the final and who pass the class performance objectives at or above 80%:

Table with 2 columns: CTE Course(s) and LDSBC Credit. Rows include Accounting I, II & Advanced Accounting; Computer Programming IA, 1B (Java), & Computer Programming II (Java); Computer Technology II; Digital Media I; Interior Design I & Interior Design II; Leadership Principles; Medical Terminology.

This credit will be offered as competency based test credit in cases where the student does not enroll in the class for concurrent enrollment. As you know, the College already accepts concurrent enrollment credit where applicable when the college transcript is received. With your approval, the College will list this information on the College's web site and in informational publications.

Sincerely,

Dear Wendi:

LDS Business College received a request from the Davis School District to review the state's AutoCAD course, Architectural Design I, to see whether college credit could be given. We are pleased to announce that LDS Business College will grant credit for Introduction to AutoCAD, ID 131, a two credit course, for students who complete Architectural Design I.

This credit will be offered as competency based test credit in cases where the student does not enroll in the class for concurrent enrollment. The student must complete the CTE course with an 80% or above score on the final and pass the class performance objectives at or above 80%. As you know, the College already accepts concurrent enrollment credit where applicable when the college transcript is received. With your approval, the College will list this information on the College's web site and in informational publications.

Sincerely,

Ronald E. Guymon
